Dear Colleagues,

VOS president John Schaffer and I would like to welcome old and new members to the first ever Society meeting in Norfolk, VA. The downtown Norfolk area has gone through an unbelievable revitalization in the last several years led by the arrival of the MacArthur Center and Nordstrom's, the battleship Wisconsin, the NorVa music club, and numerous chic and trendy restaurants and night spots. The energy and vitality flowing down Granby Street will certainly invigorate our meeting.

We have tried to provide something of interest to every member no matter what practice setting or state location. For those of you who could not make it to New Orleans and/or will not be heading out to San Francisco, we will bring the Academy to you. Dr. James Herndon, current president of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons, will be arriving Sunday to bring us up to date on the various activities of the AAOS. He will also be giving us an extremely well researched discussion of the patient safety movement. We all need to hear this, so please plan to stay through Sunday morning.

Dr. Peter Trafton, a nationally known orthopaedic trauma surgeon from Brown University, will speak on recent advances in the science of femoral and tibial fracture treatment. I have also asked him to address, from a national perspective, how orthopaedic trauma coverage for the local and regional hospitals is being orchestrated.

Dr. William Hozak of Philadelphia will continue the discussion of MIS/LIS for the total hip, including the impact of ceramics. This is set for Friday night; dinner is being provided at the Norfolk Marriott sponsored by Howemedica.

Two practice management forums are planned. Dr. Vic Goradia of Richmond will give us a mini-in-service including practical coding tips and the use of clinical templates to help us streamline our documentation while making sure our "t's" are crossed and our bullets are loaded. We have gathered a panel of physicians with experience incorporating ancillary services into their practices from across the state. They will share with us their successes, their failures, and any recommendations they might have for the rest of us.

In keeping with the nautical nature of Norfolk (ouch), our social activities will involve local marine features. The Norfolk Marriott, our meeting site, is situated on the Norfolk harbor, of course. Hopefully, everyone will join us aboard the American Rover, a three-masted schooner, for a cocktail cruise and a closer look at the harbor Saturday evening. Tours of the largest battleship in the world, the Wisconsin, are being arranged. Golf outings and/or deep-sea fishing can be facilitated if there is enough interest. We will provide some guidance to the downtown cuisine and shopping opportunities, as well.

Come early, stay late, have fun, learn something.
